Notes for William Orr:

General Notes:

by Bill Brady:

In 16 Jul 1800 under his father's will he received sasine of the 20/- land of Kame. There is no mention of Barmochloch and no Clare Constat. On 21 Dec 1802 he was given the new house by his uncle James. Feeling perhaps that the sasine he had received in 1800 was not complete, in 1833 he applied for a precept of sasine from his lawful superior Mrs Margaret Harvey of Castle Semple. She recognised him as nearest and lawful heir to his grandfather and gave a precept of Sasine and Clare Constat to the 20/- land of Kaim and the 10/- land of Barmochloch for a yearly payment of £40.12.0 Scots. Sasine was given in the usual manner on 24 Jul 1833.

In the census of 1841 he appears as a farmer in Kame aged 60.

In the census of 1851 Kame was let to David Galbraith.

Elizabeth Orr McKell recorded in 1913 that the house at Kaim had been remodelled in 1825 and that the initials above the door were WO-JB, [William Orr-Janet Brodie] 1825

The liner Persia left London on 18th December 1915, and was about 70 miles off the coast of Crete at 1.10pm on the 30th of that month when it was torpedoed without warning by U-38. The target was struck on the port bow and 5 minutes later the boiler blew up and the ship was lost. Of 501 persons aboard there were only 167 survivors, most of whom were picked up by a trawler around 30 hours after the attack.

Notes for William Crawford:

General Notes:

William's date of birth is not known. His headstone and various census records give different dates.

The year 1796 is used because it appears on two different census records.

William was a wool mill owner at Calder Glen. He was in partnership with his older brother John. According to JT Hepburn he was from Ayrshire and began his working life as an apprentice.

Andro Crawford wrote in the Cairn of Lochwinnoch, about June of 1836, (volume 26, page 348);

" The Crawfurds have taken the mill from Colonel Harvey - driven by the Cloke Burn near the millhouse. William goes to collect the raw materiel. Ship it and disembark it at Port Glasgow. Humphray Barbour, Alan Gilmore, Jamie Storie each frequently bring it with their carts up. They sell their yarn to the Kilmarnock carpet manufacturers. They sent their carts every fortnight thither. One of the partners accompany their carts. They employ 22 spinners, piecers, carders, etc forby themselves. Their mill was erected by Mr. Adam in 1814. He sold it to Harvey."

One of the products that his mill produced in later years was blankets, one of which is still in the possession of Jessie (Hepburn) Williams.

Notes for Alexander Holmes:

General Notes:

From A Story from Memory by JTO Hepburn;

"My grandmother was an energetic old woman. She had a will of iron and many were the stories my mother told when she was in a reminiscent mood of things which had happened in her younger days. As I mentioned earlier she was brought up on a farm, The Kaim, about two miles out the Greenock Road from Lochwinnoch. One of her sisters, Janet Orr, had married Sandy Holmes of Ladymuir Farm about a mile further out the Greenock Road. Sandy was quite a character. He was very fond of a fast riding horse and a fast drink of whiskey every time he came to the weekly village fair. After a time the whiskey got the upper hand and work at the farm degenerated even though he had a large family to feed. There were six sons and three daughters, one of the last yet a baby. Some of the Orrs had by that time emigrated to Canada so Janet Orr decided to leave Sandy to his whiskey and do likewise. She and all the family left him and took up residence in her sister Agnes Crawford's house to wait for a ship sailing to Canada. They were there a few weeks when one fair day Sandy Holmes rode up the street with a basket of eggs on his arm. He shouted and swore for his wife to come home but did not get down from his horse. Grandma Crawford had no men folk in the house at the time but picked up her heaviest poker and stood behind her front door, ready for Sandy if he should enter. Sandy seemed to know the character of Agnes Crawford for he confined himself to loud abuse and the battering of the strong door with eggs.

Shortly after that the family sailed from the Clyde for Canada. My mother remembers the day well because her cousin, Peter Holmes, the youngest son of the family hadn't a suit of clothes fit for a boy of four. So, he got one of my mother's best velvet frocks and had to go dressed as a little girl. When he came back to Scotland to begin business as a carriage builder in Glasgow when he was a young man my mother didn't mention anything about the velvet frock.

Sandy Holmes followed later to Canada and was again the head of the house. He was older and wiser then but I never heard any details of his life in Canada. The Holmes family had their headquarters in Woodstock. In 1954 I met there a Miss Mary Holmes who was still staying in the original Holmes house at 58 Finkle Street. She was a granddaughter of Sandy Holmes and Janet Orr from Ladymuir in Lochwinnoch, Scotland."

Notes for Jessie Brodie Crawford:

General Notes:

Family Tree Notes by J.T. Hepburn - 1962

"Jessie Brodie Hepburn (nee Crawford) the wife of James Hepburn of Biggar and Glasgow, was born at Lochwinnoch in 1849. Her mother, William Crawford's second wife, Agnes Orr of Kaim, and the younger of two of a Crawford family. William Crawford Jr., her brother had died unmarried in 1880 and Jessie had married James Hepburn at Lochwinnoch when 22 years old in 1871. After the death of her husband in Glasgow in 1894 the grain business was sold and she moved with daughter Addie to the Crawford house at Lochwinnoch and twenty-two years later, the old house of eight rooms was sold to the Lochwinnoch Gas Co. and they moved to a cottage at Johnshill which belonged to a cousin, an Orr of Kaim, (later to the Dickie family) and my mother died there in 1941.

My mother's father, William Crawford, had one daughter from his first marriage, namely Mary Crawford, who married a Mr Wright of Manchester who had been a clerk in the wool mill of the Crawford's at Lochwinnoch. After the wedding they moved to Manchester when my mother was a girl and their descendants are mostly there yet. We have lost touch with them principally because Crawford property and belongings was left to my mother."

Jessie died at Lochwinnoch in 1941.

Family Tree Notes by J.T. Hepburn - 1962

"James Hepburn, (the writers father) was born at Biggar in 1842, educated at a Biggar school and served an apprenticeship as a salesman in a dry-goods store in Biggar. Next door to this store was a hardware shop run by a Mr. Gladstone, a second cousin of the William Edward Gladstone who later was the Prime Minister of England in London. James Hepburn later worked at the same trade in Lesmahagow and Glasgow. In Glasgow he was with a large company in Argyle St. named Mann, Buyers & Co. Ltd. For several years (which is still flourishing) and in a neighbouring office met a William Crawford Jr. of Lochwinnoch. He was invited to visit the Crawford family there quite a few times who were the owners of the Crawford Wool Mills of Lochwinnoch and was later engaged to be married to Jessie Crawford (sister of William Crawford Jr.) whom he married at Lochwinnoch in 1871. They lived in Biggar near the Hepburn's shop and my sister Agnes and I were born there. We went to Biggar schools until I was ten and Addie was 13, then we moved to Crosshill, Glasgow in 1885, a suburb near the lovely Queen's Park. We had a flat at 20 Dixon Avenue, off Victoria road, then moved to 10 Carrington St., at the west end of the city (off Great Western Rd.) in 1887 to be near a grain store my father had opened in St. George Rd. near St. George Cross, which was carried on until he died in 1894, when 51 years of age. Then mother and sister moved to the old Crawford house at Lochwinnoch which had been left to her on Grandma Crawford's death in 1891. James Hepburn was buried at the old Lochwinnoch graveyard at the foot of Johnshill Road, beside the ruins of the ancient church of the village, a relic of reformation days."

Register Report for William Orr

Generation 3 (con't)

The family had moved to Woodstock Ontario but William Holmes returned to Scotland and started a business in Irvine in carriage building. He married Ann Reid of Knowhead, a younger sister of Mrs. Andrew Muirhead of Lochwinnoch, and a cousin of Roberta Reid of Victoria, BC. William Holmes died in (about 1912) ?

- William Holmes, eldest son of W^m and Ann Reid, was educated at Irvine and was partner in the carriage building business. He took a trip to Canada when a young man, and had an accident on the liner coming back to Scotland, from which he never recovered, and died a few months later.

The weddings of Anne and Jessie at the large house of the Holmes family in Irvine were attended by the Hepburns (including the writer) and left many happy memories (that was before he came to Canada in 1909, by a few years).
